WHAT WE'RE READING

In Paris's Suburbs, a Bike Trail Plan Carries a Big Promise (CityLab)

"Cycling advocates have proposed a network of bicycle paths connecting the suburbs and city center, comparing their plan to the region's rapid transit system."

How an E-Bike Changed My Life (NY Times)

"Riding grew harder as I grew older. Then I got an electric bicycle."

Vision Zero is the Wrong Goal (Jalopnik)

"Vision Zero is failing to have a meaningful impact because it targets the wrong goal. The logical flaw here, at least as implemented in New York City, is quite basic: it is a policy that requires dead cyclists as a prerequisite to safety improvements."
